BELT-ROAD BIDDER PUT UNDER PROBE NOW

CALIFORNIA TO AID IN PEST FIGHT?

BREAKERS AHEAD VERY SOON FOR "HIZZONER"

Secretary Is Going to Coast;
Supervisors Expect Some Fun With Fern.

McCLELLAN DELEGATED TO STEER THE SHIP

Bertram G. Rivenburgh, private secretary to Mayor Fern and the guiding star of the city's executive through the mazes of parliamentary procedure, is going to take a three months' vacation, and the Republican board of supervisors is indulging in some anticipatory chuckles at the thought of what's coming to "Hizzoner."

Rivenburgh will be absent from the city about three months, from present prospects. During that time, it's going to be up to Bill McClellan, the lone Democrat on the board, to do the guiding star act. A canvass of the situation from the Democratic standpoint has shown that Fern, McClellan and Rivenburgh are the only three tried and true Bourbons who are in touch with the city fathers closely.

The Republican members of the board, who at best are on terms of armed neutrality only with His Honor, say that Fern is in for a warm time for they think as a presiding officer he has his weak points and still weaker points on policy in general.

Whether McClellan will be able to handle the situation remains to be seen. Rivenburgh goes away on the Wilhelmina and the fireworks may be looked for very shortly after. Mrs. Rivenburgh will accompany her husband.

WANT FIREPROOF DORMITORY NOW

Preliminary plans have been drawn by Emory & Webb, architects for the new girls' dormitory at Oahu College, and six sketches have been made for the building, all of them contemplating concrete and practically fireproof construction.

These plans are being submitted to the trustees of the college, and early decision on them is expected. Some of the trustees, it was stated today, are flatly in favor of concrete construction, the sudden and disastrous fire that destroyed the dormitory several weeks ago having impressed upon them the advisability of a more resistant form of construction.

WOODWARD NAPS; JOB FOR BOYD

When Albert K. Woodward, fish and meat inspector in the employ of the City and County of Honolulu, sank into dreamless slumber while at his post of duty at the King street fish market, he incurred the displeasure of no less important personage than Supervisor Eben Low, who was a spectator to the somnolent manifestation of Woodward.

Chairman Kruger of the sanitation and health committee of the Board of Supervisors immediately took steps towards holding an inquiry, and as a result of his investigation Woodward finds himself without the municipal fold with the beginning of a new month.

The name of Woodward has been temporarily erased from city payroll, hence the unusual agitation in certain circles.

COMMISSION IS INVESTIGATING WILSON'S RECORD

The Lord-Young company, second to man of the commission, who has been the lowest bidder for building approximately five miles of new highway at failure of Wilson to make good in his Teela, which is to be incorporated in contract for the outfall sewer, and also they proposed belt-road system for the a four-mile strip of road work which Island of Oahu, seems today the probable winner of the contract.

John H. Wilson, who among eight local contractors submitted the lowest tender, is stated to be now under investigation by a special committee of James H. Boyd, at the time Wilson was one, among the Loan Fund Commission awarded a contract for building a section, it being alleged that Wilson "fell down" on two previous contracts which that the work was never completed and he had secured under previous administration that it cost the government then a much larger sum of money than at first contemplated. Wilson comes back to meet for a final consideration of the with what he declares is proof that at bids tomorrow afternoon. Its decision the time he was commissioned to build will doubtless center upon a report the sewer outlet he was hampered and which is expected to be forthcoming furnished by the government officials, from Andrew Adams of Kahuku, chairman.

An endeavor to harmonize the obnoxious differences between the trustees may discuss differences between the Board of whether or not harmony is to be served Harbor Commissioners and the local by the retention of W. R. Bulletin Industrial For 1912, Now Under Way

The Bulletin has now in preparation the fourth of its Hawaiian Industrial editions that have established a high standard and are properly rated as the most elaborate and authentic literature published on the industries of the islands.

J. B. McSwanson, well known to Bulletin patrons, is in charge of this work and is now making his tour of the islands to secure the material for the text and illustrations.

Each year this edition is more elaborate and complete than the one previous. The work now in hand will go into the details of the sugar plantation properties with a view to showing the improved conditions on the plantations in the housing and surroundings of the plantation workers. Another special feature will be a full detail of the large amount of American capital involved in the main industries of the islands. There will be a statement of plain facts that of themselves promptly refute an erroneous and unfortunate idea prevailing on the mainland that Hawaii is a land conducted of, by and for the alien.

The personnel of the executive staff on the plantations will be brought before the public. Half the people in Hawaii don't know who's who on the plantation properties, and this edition will help our own people to become acquainted with their surroundings as well as to set right the people abroad.

The publication will be issued in February when the tourists are assembling in force and at the time when Congress will be taking up the sugar industry of the country and of the Territory of Hawaii. If the facts are available to support it, and they are available, this edition will show that the national policy of protection has built up large agricultural enterprises that will be ruined by the withdrawal of the present tariff as a consequence of a misconception of conditions in the islands.

Besides being accurate in the text, this edition will be very freely illustrated so as to interest as well as instruct the reader.

Mr. McSwanson, on account of his wide acquaintance throughout the islands, is especially well fitted to assemble the material for this work, and the people may rest assured that it will be not only good reading and well printed but as accurate as a text book and as interesting as an illustrated novel.

Joseph Viveiras, who pleaded guilty this morning to two charges of larceny, was sentenced to a year in each case, the terms to follow one another. Judge Cooper handed out the verdict in the court and when he had finished the boy's mother broke down and was led weeping from the room.

Minnie A. Caine is the rather financial name of a windjammer that is reported as departing from Everett Washington, with a full shipment of lumber, consigned to 6Hilo Importers. The vessel sailed from the Washington port today according to late cables.

MADERO ELECTED MEXICO'S HEAD

(Special Bulletin Cable.)
MEXICO CITY, Mex., Oct. 2.—Indications are that Francisco Madero, leader of the revolution that swept Diaz from the presidency, has been named president almost unanimously in the general elections held today. The vice-presidency is doubtful.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY DROPS DEAD

(Associated Press Cable.)
NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Rear-Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, U. S. N., famous as commander of the American fleet at the battle of Santiago, dropped dead on the street of apoplexy here today.

Rear-Admiral Schley has been one of the most widely known of United States naval men. He was born in Maryland on October 9, 1839; graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1860, and from then on went steadily up in the service. One of his most famous exploits was the rescue of the Greeley Arctic exploration party in 1884, for which he was awarded several medals. During the war with Spain he was in command of the Flying Squadron. He was in immediate command of the American vessels at the battle of Santiago de Cuba, July 3, 1898, which resulted in the destruction of Cervera's fleet, and following this was in command of the South Atlantic squadron until 1901, when he retired, and has since lived in Washington. It was after the battle of Santiago that the noted Sampson-Schley controversy arose.

EXPERT PLANS COOPERATION TO FIGHT FRUIT FLY

That Hawaii should raise money to fight the ravages of the Mediterranean fruit fly and that California should cooperate in the movement pay half the expense is the opinion of Entomologist E. K. Carnes who was sent down here by the California State Bureau of Agriculture to make a report on the situation. It will probably form the most important recommendation in his report to California.

He is at present working out the first part of his report and will finish it within a short time. During his stay here he has made a very thorough investigation on the whole situation and his report will show it is stated that the fly has a strong foothold here and immediate action is necessary.

When the matter was first made public as to the extent of the attack it was announced that the fly would not injure the guavas. Mr. Carnes has, however, found out that the guavas are not immune and he has found test tubes half-full of flies and maggots which have been bred out of guavas.

Although he has now about completed his investigations, he has not formulated any definite plan of campaign against the fly. This he will work out after he has finished up the report on conditions. At the same time he is of the opinion that something must be done immediately to put some check on the spread of the dangerous pest.

California To Come In.
It is here that he will suggest that California should contribute half of the money needed to start an efficient fight and to maintain it. The local bureau, however, is stuck for funds and have only just enough to scrape through on. It seems likely, therefore, that some call will have to be made on outside sources.

Mr. Carnes' report will undoubtedly have a very direct bearing on the action that is to be taken by the Californian people and the fact that he has found the situation here so grave is causing a movement to start in the various departments.

Action will in all probability be taken by the members of the board of agriculture and forestry at a meeting to be held towards the latter part of this week when the whole of the matter will be thrashed out and ways and means gone into.

It is also understood that Mr. Carnes will be asked to leave a copy of his report with the members for their direction as to future action.

WOOD MAY USE BARGES TO SOLVE PROBLEM AT HILO BREAKWATER

Charles F. Wood, vice-president of the Breakwater Company of Philadelphia, is preparing to run a line of barges from Maui to Hawaii to handle rock for the $400,000 breakwater contract on which the company recently was lowest bidder, according to good information.

The establishment of a quarry on Maui and a line of barges carrying stone to Hilo is the only method local contractors see for Wood to adopt to protect his company from a loss of from $50,000 to $150,000 on the job. It would take very close figuring, it is believed, to break even in any way.

Wood's plans have not been made public at all and he has declined to go into details as to his quarry site and scheme for handling the rock to the breakwater. The barge-line will be a decided innovation here, if it is tried. Mr. Wood was recently on Maui and according to pretty definite information, his trip was in connection with the securing of a quarry site and perfecting plans for the barge line.

On arraignment in the criminal court this morning, before Judge Cooper, Manuel Ramos was handed over to the custody of the sheriff. He comes up for plea on October 4, being charged with assault and battery.

The Hawaiian band played its five hundredth concert yesterday at Kapiolani park and then went on its annual month's vacation.

"TROPIC STATION" NOT OPPOSED HERE

Gen. Wood's Scheme, Attacked
On Mainland, Rather Favored Locally

HAWAII WOULD BENEFIT, THINK SOME OFFICERS

Army men in Hawaii are not losing sleep over the proposed plan of General Leonard Wood to establish permanent regimental stations in the tropics, where regiments would be held indefinitely, their personnel changing from time to time, instead of being ordered as an entire organization from post to post.

This latest suggestion from General Wood has been made the subject of bitter attack by some of the Eastern papers, and by several "higher-ups" in the service, who see in the plan the wrecking of regimental pride and esprit. They claim that the constant shifting of officers and men from one regiment to another, as individual terms of service in the tropics passed, would be ruinous to the traditions and morale of the army.

Officers stationed here, who may be considered in a better position to judge local conditions than those on the mainland, fail to see the end of the army in the plan, and, on the other hand, see several excellent points in the proposed change.

"There is nothing definite as yet about the establishment of permanent regimental posts in the tropics," said Brigadier-General M. M. Macomb, commanding the Department of Hawaii, in an interview granted to a Bulletin reporter this morning.
